OH, THOSE HAPPY DAYS

Happy Mondays rocked the Electric Gardens in Mount Ephraim in August – but events at the venue could be under threat from new police cash demands.

EXCLUSIVE

BY GARETH ARNOLD

MAJOR rock and classical music shows at Mount Ephraim could be under threat as a result of police charging to attend large scale events, a promoter has warned.

Kent police will start charging to attend the majority of events which require a police presence from April 1 next year.

Mount Ephraim, in Hernehill, near Faversham, currently plays host to a selection of popular events, including the Gala Prom and music festival Electric Gardens which saw 14,000 people descend on the gardens for a two-day bill of bands and DJs.

Now Vanessa Campion, organiser of the annual Gala Prom, and other promoters, have been invited to a meeting with Kent police next month to discuss the charges.

She said: "If there is a substantial charge it will put a great deal of pressure on all events. I'll be interested to see what the police are offering."

Kent police assistant chief constable Adrian Leppard said: "This policy is not something that the police or the Association of Chief Police Officers put into place to make money, it was based on having a consistent and fair approach to event charging across all UK forces."

But Mrs Campion says a more flexible approach is needed. She said: "They are trying to make one size fit all, which is why the conflicts are arising. If they are going to charge at their previous level, it will have a serious impact on all events."

Police have said there will be no charge for events requiring 24 hours or less of officers' time, including the time it takes for planning. Events such as Remembrance Day parades are exempt.

Untaxed? You could be on road to this...

BY GARETH ARNOLD

MORE than two dozen cars face being crushed after a week-long police and council operation in Faversham and Sheppey.

The police seized seven cars in Faversham alone as part of Operation Cubit, a long running push to rid the streets of abandoned and untaxed vehicles.

Unless owners come forward to claim their captured vehicles, the cars seem set for a final trip to the crushers yard where they will be cubed as a result of the eponymous operation.

Chief Inspector Mark Chambers said: "We are committed to making the roads in Swale safer. Often cars that are untaxed are uninsured and in some cases not roadworthy. By taking these vehicles off the streets, we are making a positive difference in the community.

"We want to remove as many untaxed cars as possible so that Swale residents can enjoy a better quality of life and clean, safe streets"

Operation Cubit targets not only unwanted vehicles, but also those which are untaxed and still being driven. An automatic number plate reader is used to detect the cars that have invalid tax discs, then drivers are given the chance to pay a fine or their vehicle is seized and put into a secure compound.

SEIZED: Police are seizing cars as part of Operation Cubit and if unclaimed they are crushed

In the latest clampdown 25 vehicles were removed from the road when Kent police, Swale council, Kent County Council, the DVLA and the Community Safety Partnership went out on the beat for the whole of last week. By Friday, the team was satisfied they had captured a significant proportion of the borough's untaxed cars.

Swale council's Alister Andrews said: "This operation has been a success. By working closely in partnership with our colleagues in the various agencies we have managed to catch a significant number of motorists who have failed to tax their vehicles."

The highest concentrated proportion of vehicles seized was in Faversham and Sheppey. Seven cars were taken in Faversham and another seven in Minster and Marine Town. Others were caught across the borough.

If you would like to report an untaxed vehicle telephone 0800 0325 202.

Brown would be a 'mug' to call early election

Tory doesn't believe PM will go to polls

MID KENT MP Hugh Robertson says he does not believe Prime Minister Gordon Brown will call an early election – despite speculation he could go to the polls as early as next month.

Mr Robertson believes any snap decision could prove costly for the new PM – and that he is convinced voters will decide the result on local issues in the face of widespread public disinterest in national politics.

The Conservative shadow minister for sport said: "We saw that the last time around, and at a time when there's a certain amount of general disillusionment with national politics, I think people are far more likely to vote on local issues.

"There is a lot riding on people's local experience. What we could end up with is almost a series of local referendums.

BY GARETH ARNOLD

"Nationally the big issues that will decide it are going to be crime and the NHS, but it depends very much on what part of the country you live in.

"Down here around Faversham it is house building."

A great deal of speculation over an impending election has been fuelled by a Labour lead in the polls, but this could be misleading says Mr Robertson.

He said: "The problem at the moment is the electorate is so volatile.

"In three weeks my party has gone from three points ahead in the polls to six points behind.

"This indicates there are quite a lot of people who have not decided who they are going to vote for."

The latest poll, carried out by Ipsos-MORI at the end of last week, suggested Labour had a clear majority of 42 per cent, with the Tories on 34 per cent and the Liberal Democrats trailing on 14 per cent.

The Prime Minister made no mention of an early election during his Labour Party Conference speech on Monday, but neither has he ruled one out.

He still has two-and-a-half years left to run in office.

Mr Robertson said: "The big issue for the Prime Minister is when he's going to call it. I think there's quite a lot of movement around the place at the moment, I think he'll be cautious, and he's going to want to wait until he knows he can win.

"He'd be an absolute mug to call it early and lose.

"The best indicator is what has happened to the Lib Dem votes."

Labour is currently advertising 22 jobs, which include campaign assistants, press officers, graphic designers, policy and research officers, all positions vital to a party making ready for an election battle.

One hell of a cook

EX-WORLD boxing champion Barry McGuigan was back home in Dargate this week after proving he was a dab hand with the frying pan as well as the boxing gloves.

The fighter was crowned winner of ITV's Hell's Kitchen in a viewers vote – with more than six million viewers tuning in to watch his triumph.

It peaked at 6.3m – easily beating the next best-watched show – BBC1's 10 O'Clock News which pulled in 5.5m.

It beat off last year's series, spearheaded by Thanet chef Gary Rhodes and charismatic Frenchman Jean Christophe Novelli.

Get online with free workshop

BY NICK AMES

CONFUSED by dot coms and worried about the world wide web? Then a free course at Teynham library should allow you to dispel your fears and jump on to the information superhighway.

Along with several other venues across Swale, the library in London Road is hosting a Get Online Day, a course designed to demystify the internet and open up its advantages to all.

Survey results released last month revealed that one in 17 people in Kent are averse to using the internet, and a further one in seven say they lack confidence online.

Helen Milner, managing director of UK Online Centres which are organising he courses, said: "That means more than 233,000 people are being held back from taking advantage of the information, opportunities and benefits the internet can provide – they are in danger of becoming a lost generation, logged out of a society that is increasingly reliant on the internet.

"So many people are missing out because they don't use the internet and Get Online Day is a great way for them to try it out.

"Our staff will be there on the day to give a helping hand and there will be lots of free activities, including a family web challenge with a chance to win some great prizes from PC World.

"We want people to see that getting online isn't scary at all – it can save time, hassle and money and you can even have fun in the process."

The Government believes this is a particular issue for parents, as not being online could have an impact on family life, as web-phobic parents can't help their kids with internet-based homework or get cheap holidays on the web.

The Get Online Day takes place on Friday, October 12.

Other venues in Swale holding similar events are Queenborough Library, Railway Terrace; Murston Community Learning Centre, 1 Ashtree House, Woodberry Drive, Sittingbourne; and Sittingbourne Library, Central Avenue.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Investigation boosted by new witnesses

NEW witnesses have re-invigorated the investigation into the death of a man whose body was found in a stream near the M20.

Sixty-year-old Robert Heskins, of Military Road, Canterbury, was found dead in a stream on August 30, six days after he was admitted to the William Harvey Hospital in Ashford suffering from a head injury.

A post-mortem showed Mr Heskins died from a head injury and immersion in water. An inquest into his death was opened and adjourned in Ashford on September 6.

KCC completes four year county footpath survey

A four-year survey of the countryside will mean better access for walkers wanting to enjoy the footpaths and views across Kent.

The study – the first of its kind in the UK – was carried out by Kent County Council.

It took in every part of the county's 4,200 miles of public right of way.

The public will soon be able to see the results on KCC's "Explore Kent" website.

Surveyors used handheld GPS technology to collect the data which identified the exact locations and position of all footpaths.

Lobby county councillor at Herne Bay surgery

COUNTY council member for Herne Bay, David Hurst, is holding a surgery this Saturday.

People are invited to the town's council offices in William Street, between 10am and noon to raise concerns they may have about KCC services with Mr Hurst.

He said: "KCC provides many of the services people receive, and if they have a problems with anything, they can come to me.

"Roads and street lighting are always issues which raise concerns."

Come up with a water saving plan for free butt

FREE water butts are up for grabs from the council if you can come up with an original drought busting idea.

Environmental promotions officer, Helen Bennington, said: "The council has been implementing water saving measures, such as installing self turn off taps and water reduction systems. Now we want to hear whether local residents have any ideas."

Suggestions should be sent to Helen Bennington, Canterbury City Council, Military Road, Canterbury, CT1 1YW, or email helen.bennington@canterbury.gov.uk.

Fewer seats in centre would slash income

Roller hockey threat if Pier pavilion goes

SKATING THE ISSUE: Herne Bay has been at the centre of the roller hockey scene for more than 30 years

THEY ARE flying the flag for Herne Bay against some of the biggest names in European sport – but the town's roller hockey club say their future could be under threat if council chiefs do not listen to their concerns.

BY GARETH ARNOLD

Herne Bay United, who have been drawn against Portuguese giants FC Porto in the sport's equivalent of football's Champions League next month, have spoken out after council chiefs chewed over five proposals for sport provision in the town.

At the centre of the debate is the future of Pier Sports' pavilion, the club's existing home.

The option receiving the most serious attention is a massive expansion of Herne Bay High School, costing £2.26 million.

But United chiefs say they will be compromised by the move, which at the very least will mean a one-third reduction in seating, and thus a reduction in revenue.

Herne Bay United coach and former England player Phil McVey said: "The problem is whatever is going to be built needs to be equal to, or better than what we already have.

"I work in London, and when I say I live in Herne Bay, people say 'I went roller skating there when I was a kid, or 'I watched roller hockey there once'. It is a part of the town.

"This is where roller hockey started and it's the home of roller hockey in the country and pretty much the world."

Council officers say an eight court hall at the school would allow the club to host international competitions in the town and give the school access to much improved facilities.

Mr McVey said: "If they spend just a little bit more, Herne Bay can host real internationals, not just in roller hockey, but in other sports as well."

A council spokesman said: "The plans for Herne Bay High School are not definitive. We have been and will continue to work with representatives of the roller hockey club to ensure as best as possible that the new facilities can accommodate national and international hockey events."

Factors against the move include concern over moving leisure facilities to the outskirts of town, potentially damaging the tourist trade.

So what are the other options?

ONE proposal is the refurbishment of the Pier Sports Centre.

Although this would maintain the necessary space for Herne Bay's roller hockey teams and bowls clubs, it is seen as an expensive and restrictive option by council officers.

The redevelopment would be limited to the size of the current building, with no expansion possible to take into account future demands and extra facilities.

Canterbury council is also worried about the spiraling costs of maintaining the site which is more than 30 years old.

The expansion of Herons Leisure Pool has also been discussed. But, critically, this option does not include a sports hall, and with the demolition of the Pier Sports Pavilion, the town's all important roller hockey team would be deprived of vital practice space.

Building an entirely new leisure centre incorporating a large sports hall, gym and pool is also being considered, but no suitable site exists in the town. A fifth proposal suggests expanding Herons Leisure pool and extending facilities at Herne Bay High, although the cost of this option is considerable.

The proposals were due to be discussed at a meeting of the Herne Bay Area Member Panel last night. Visit www.yourkenttv.co.uk for views on the plans.

Villages join forces to save rural bus service

THE FIGHT is on to resurrect a vital rural bus service which has left hundreds of villagers stranded.

The Royal Mail axed its popular 'post bus' service earlier this month as a cost-cutting measure. The service, which put three minibuses on the road to ferry residents and post, from 23 villages into Canterbury, was provided by the company, but subsidised by Kent County Council by up to £12,000 a year.

But hopes of using that money to get a new service up and running have been foiled by KCC transport chiefs who say they can no longer afford the money.

Now a coalition of 10 parish councils have teamed up with Canterbury council to bring the service back.

Canterbury councillor Brian Staley said: "The council have saved £33,000 a year now they are no longer subsidising the post bus, but that money could be put towards our scheme.

"Many passengers are elderly widows who are most vulnerable, and they are suffering most."

KCC has offered to tax and insure a second-hand minibus which would be handed over to the parishes to use as they saw fit.

But this would require the parishes to provide fuel and find volunteer drivers, and community representatives say the plan does not go far enough.

Cllr Staley said: "What we need is a regular service. If people know a service is regular and reliable, more people will use it, and not just to get from the villages into Canterbury.

"People living in the city could use it to visit the village pubs without having to drive, thus enriching the rural community."

Mr Staley said the cessation of the post bus service had already forced some elderly people out of villages they had grown up in, as it provided their only lifeline to shops and services in Canterbury.

Cllr Staley is collecting a petition to present to KCC demanding they look again at a business plan he has produced for a regular bus service.

He has drawn up routes serving 23 villages around Canterbury which he envisages would be run by two buses, with one full time driver and several part timers.

Adisham parish councillor Jim Colthup said: "We are not just trying to replace the post bus, we are trying to get some form of rural transport service."

Girls' ramble to raise money

ONE thousand costumed pupils and teachers from Simon Langton Girls' Grammar School took part in a sponsored walk through Canterbury last Friday.

The previous year's ramble raised more than £10,000, and this year the school hopes to top that record.

Half of all the money raised will go to the Cathedral Unit at Kent and Canterbury Hospital, in memory of much loved foreign languages teacher Nadine Buttenshaw, who died of cancer in May.

Mrs Buttenshaw praised the exemplary care she received at the unit, and requested that donations were made to help support their continuing work.

The international theme saw a wide variety of interpretations.

Careers education manager Rosemary Jones said: "The girls looked wonderful. There were the typical striped T-shirts and berets, including some of the staff, I might add, as well as Mexicans in sombreros with cacti."

The pupils voted to donate the other half of the money to the Mary Sheridan Centre, a children's health facility in the city.

The 12 km walk followed a path from the school in Old Dover Road through several surrounding villages before returning back to the school grounds.

QUESTION & ANSWER

PAUL SCALLY

Q&A

Gillingham Football Club chairman Paul Scally spoke to Simon Robinson about his time at the club and reveals what supporters can look forward to in the coming years.

Q How are things going at the club?

A As a whole things are going well. The club is pushing forward off the pitch with a number of great initiatives. The sticker book is going well and the new programme and website are looking most professional. We naturally need results to improve on the pitch, but the club is definitely pushing in the right direction and results will soon improve. I'm confident of that because we have a good squad of players.

Q What are the expectations for this season?

A We believe we can earn promotion because we have a number of good players at the club. The squad still hasn't fully 'gelled' but I can see improvements each week and I honestly believe we have the ability to earn a play-off spot by the end of the of season.

Q What do you like about Medway?

A The fact that Gillingham Football Club is a sleeping giant is an obvious asset. We are the only football league club in the county and if results improve then we can achieve what we want to – and more. We have plenty of untapped potential and Medway is a great place to be. We are at the heart of the Thames Gateway Regeneration Project and The KRBS Priestfield Stadium is just 45 minutes drive from The City of London and London Gatwick Airport. The Channel Tunnel link with France and Europe is less than 30 minutes away and the Ashford and Ebbsfleet International Rail Terminals are only 25 minutes away. It's the perfect location for a football club.

Q What would you change?

A Well, we would naturally love to be playing in a new arena within Medway. As soon as we move location then everything will be perfect. We are very happy to be here in Medway, we just need a move because the club can then really drive on forwards.

Q What do you make of the Gills' supporters?

A Well, we would love more to come on a regular basis. We should be getting more than 5,000 fans for home matches. Agreed, our away form was poor last season, but we were most impressive here at Priestfield. We played some great football and will continue to do likewise this season. My message is simple. I want fans to support their local club and make lots of noise. Let's get Priestfield rocking.

Q What made you step in and save the club?

A As I've mentioned so far in this piece, I saw lots of potential here at Gillingham. Medway has a community of 250,000 people, rising to 300,000 people within the next 10 years. Based on potential, there is no reason why Medway, as an area, could not sustain a Premiership football club.

Q Any regrets at all throughout your time as chairman?

A No, not really. Naturally there have been some lows but also plenty of highs. I'm a positive person and prefer to concentrate on the highs we've enjoyed. The club has been to Wembley twice under my chairmanship and has also earned two promotions. The relegation from The Championship was disappointing but I truly believe we can earn promotion again this season and get back to where we should be.

Q What can we look forward to in the coming months and years?

A Like I said, we believe promotion is a viable option this season. We have some good players. Hopefully the new manager will bring the best out of the squad, as well as signing some new exciting players. The new arena is progressing nicely. Unfortunately, I am unable to say too much at this stage but it's a great time to be supporting Gillingham Football Club. We are a club on the up and I urge all supporters to really get behind us and help to play a part in driving this great club forward.

Groups set for meeting over harbour plans

QUAY DECISION: Plans to redevelop Whitstable Harbour have not gone down well with residents

BY CHRIS JAMES

THE NEXT stage in the saga of the controversial redevelopment plans for Whitstable Harbour takes place on Monday.

Organisations in the town are being invited to an informal meeting of the Harbour Board at Whitstable Castle.

There, they will hear views and comments on the proposed South Quay redevelopment. A maximum of two representatives from each town organisation and harbour campaign groups can attend.

Local residents have been up in arms over the plans put forward for the site, which the Harbour Board insist are vital for the long-term future of the quay.

It says maintaining the harbour in its current state will cost £10 million over the next 25 years and that redevelopment is a necessity, not an option.

But the three plans put forward have not gone down well and a 10,000-strong petitition opposing them was handed into Canterbury council earlier this month.

Spearheading the push for throwing out the plans is the Whitstable Harbour Watch group, whose poster campaign appears in the windows of hundreds of homes across the town.

The schemes so far put forward include plans to build a supermarket, an aquarium or a pub, but council chiefs continue to insist that all of these options can still return to the drawing board.

Monday's meeting will be held at the Mallandain Room at Whitstable Castle, from 3pm.

To find out how to attend, contact committee administrator Rosemary Burton on 01227 862009 or rosemary.burton@canterbury.gov.uk as soon as possible.

Stolen church bell part of growing crime trend

THE RECENT theft of a 70-year-old bell in Whitstable is part of an increasing number of metal thefts from churches across the UK which have led to more than £3.5 million of insurance claims.

The Sachring bell was taken from St Peter's Church earlier this month.

Police say the rise in metal prices is behind a spate of similar thefts up and down the country, with the stolen goods shipped out to countries such as India and China where demand for the material is at its highest.

A spokesman for Ecclesiastical Insurance, which covers the majority of Church of England buildings, reported recently more than 300 such thefts in August alone – and more than 1,000 so far this year.

A spokesman said: "We saw a similar spike in claims in the 1970s when metal prices reached a high.

"Because they are reaching another high at the moment we are seeing a corresponding rise in thefts, so the local parish church is becoming a victim of the world-wide demand for metals."

Spurs founder remembered

A CEREMONY this week gave deserved recognition to the founder of Tottenham Hotspur who lies in a pauper's grave in Dover.

The Rev John Ripsher founded the Premiership club in order to get the youngsters of 19th century London off the streets

Rev Ripsher lost his sight and died in a workhouse 100 years ago this month and his remains are buried in St Mary's Cemetery.

Spurs' executive director, Paul Barber, and Steve Ripsher, a descendant, were all present.

Also there were the living relatives of ex-Spurs star Walter Tull – the first professional black outfield player to play in Britain and who died while serving as an officer in World War One.

■ BY NICK AMES

Mr Barber said: "It's a fascinating story; poetic and sad. There is huge respect here for what John did in those early years — not just founding the club, but keeping it going."

The Rev Ripsher's tale was unearthed by Peter Lupson, whose discovery that Everton were formed by boys in the bible class at St Domingo's Methodist Chapel set him on an 11-year search for the religious roots of the game.

Rev Ripsher was a bible teacher at All Hallows Church in Tottenham and the club's first president

Mr Lupson said: "He gripped my imagination. He stood by those boys, who had continually let him down. If he had not stuck by those lads there would be no club today."

Spurs executive Paul Barber said: "It is strangely fitting because it is our 125th birthday match next week, against Aston Villa."

Mr Lupson discovered that 12 of the 39 clubs that have played in the Premiership share a church background.

Mr Lupson said: "What grieves me — having spent so long researching these people that I almost feel I know them — is the disrepair so many of the graves had fallen into.

"I want to see them restored to some level of dignity, and the clubs agree wholeheartedly."

Two year old is youngest to receive pacemaker

TODDLER Amber Howe is set to live a normal life just three months after a heart blockage almost killed her.

The two-year-old from Sittingbourne became the second youngest person in the UK ever fitted with a pacemaker after she stopped breathing while asleep.

Within hours she was undergoing surgery at a top London hospital where surgeons inserted the device. This week docs have told her mum Ali the op was a total success and little Amber will be able to lead a normal life.

Muslims call for new faith school in county

MUSLIM community leaders are calling for a state funded Islamic school to be set up for serve the county.

Anwar Khan of the Kent Muslim Welfare Association, said hundreds of children were being deprived of an education in a specialist faith school. Kent County Council have agreed to heed the call and offered help.

Mr Khan, who is attached to Jamia Mosque in Gillingham, said about 100 children attended out of school classes there to learn about the faith.

Olympics blamed for arts funding struggle

LOTTERY money being diverted into the London 2012 Olympic Games is stifling opportunities for the arts in Ashford.

In the week a campaign was launched to push for a theatre in the town, council chiefs said although a venue is in long-term plans, hopes of landing crucial funds are struggling.

Christopher Dixon, for Ashford council said: "At the moment the general climate for funding the arts is difficult because so much money is being redirected to the Olympics.

"We are addressing the problem."

FUTURISTIC: A pod in the new Liquid club

Venue set to lead club scene

THE clubbing scene in Maidstone is set to be transformed when Ikon reopens in November following a £3 million upgrade.

The new 1,800 capacity club will be relaunched as Liquid and Envy.

General manager Julian Holyoake said: "We plan to provide the ultimate 'must visit' clubbing experience. Our unique touches will really set us apart from our competition."

The Lockmeadow leisure complex in Barker Road will be split into two rooms with a number of party booths overlooking the dance floor.

These futuristic pods will be used as exclusive VIP rooms when the club opens on November 2.

Clubbers attending the Liquid area will also get to experience the latest sound and lighting systems as club chiefs look to attract customers from across the county.

Envy, the second room in the venue, is aimed to accommodate the over 23's with a more chilled atmosphere, private booths and table service.

The venue will also incorporate a brand new smoking terrace on the roof overlooking Barker Road. Liquid and Envy will be open Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

with Dr Christian Farthing
at the Ideal Spine Centre, Canterbury

Are you in balance?

Many people think if they eat well and exercise regularly, they are healthy. If you think that is enough, you need to read on…

Everyone knows of someone who looked well, ate well and exercised, and were struck down by a heart attack or diagnosed with cancer.

Then some wise guy tells them it must have been in their genes or they had bad DNA! What you need to know is: that is the case in only 2% of cases. In 98% of us, we are born with the ability to live with outrageous health and wellness.

What you also need to know is that your spine and nervous system are at the core of your health. Your brain, spinal cord and all the nerves in your body control all the functions that keep you well.

The bone that surrounds this intricate system is called the spine and unfortunately, if placed under some kind of stress, it can become misaligned.

If a misalignment occurs, it causes interference to the nervous system and causes poor function somewhere in your body and results in you suffering from pain and sickness.

Most people have used the 'old sickness system' of popping pills to take the symptom away. But we have learnt over time that applying 'band-aid' treatment and 'patch-up' never corrects the cause of the problem.

The public have learnt through the mistakes of others. Taking pills can lead to other problems worse than the original one! That is why people are now moving away from their traditional old fashioned doctor to use a modern trained wellness doctor. Yes, a health practitioner who is more interested in your long term health and not the quick fix and send you home with a packet of pills.

The only way to get well and stay well is correct the cause. If your posture is out of balance, then your spine is more than likely misaligned. This causes nerve interference inside your body, and ultimately results in dis-ease. The principle for health is better stated and known as "Posture is the window to your spine and your health".

So, what can you do to check if you and your family are in balance or not?

When you look at a person from the front, their spine should be straight. The head, shoulders, hips, and feet should be lined up. When you look at a person from the side, the ears should be back over the shoulders and the shoulders should be back over the pelvis.

Abnormal posture and spinal problems are present if the following are positive:

- Their head is visibly tilted, shifted, or rotated in one direction
- Their head is jutted out in front of their chest and shoulders (forward-head syndrome)
- One hip is higher than the other, turned in one direction, or shifted to one side
- One shoulder is higher than the other, turned in one direction, or their whole upper body is shifted to one side.

If you know someone who has not had their spine checked by a modern trained Wellness Doctor, better known as a Spinal Specialist, it is one of the most important tests they could have to prevent pain and suffering in the future.

Stop developers ruining our beautiful countryside

IN 1945 Shell purchased the Woodstock Estate in delightful countryside just south of Sittingbourne and set up the Woodstock Experimental Testing Station.

Over the years it developed into the Sittingbourne Research Centre and became a centre of excellence for the development of agricultural chemicals.

The chances are that you have at least one of the products developed there somewhere in your home.

The site was developed to exist in harmony with its surroundings and it was a good neighbour to the town providing a source of income for local businesses and many well paid jobs. It cost a lot of money to run but the company played a long game, knowing that one good product would more than pay for several lean years.

Then in 1995 Shell left Sittingbourne, having sold its agrochemical business. The site passed into the hands of property developers who wanted to make money by renting out the buildings to various businesses. It is called, somewhat optimistically, Kent Science Park.

Although some businesses there are science based, others are not. The next time you read Private Eye in a doctor's surgery, look at the postcode from which it is distributed. Yes, you got it, it's from the science park!

Now, a property developer isn't interested in the products which emanate from the site, although it makes sure it basks in the publicity of any notable development by the science-based businesses. What it wants to do is to maximise the amount of money that it can generate from the site itself.

Some bright spark recognised the value of the site could be increased enormously if it could have direct access to the M2 motorway. A science park doesn't develop much traffic and it doesn't need direct motorway access, but light industry and distribution centres would benefit from it.

So, how could such a link be funded? Well, said the bright spark, why not con Sittingbourne into believing that it would benefit from a new road linking the A2 to the M2, going right past Kent Science Park, then Swale council could allow the development of lots and lots of houses where fields and orchards thrive to pay for the new road.

The town was outraged. But now, an independent panel has reviewed the draft South East plan and has recommended a new A2/M2 link. So, what does the future hold? Will Sittingbourne's urban sprawl continue, obliterating beautiful villages such as Rodmersham and Tunstall? Like hell it will. Stand up for your town you councillors and tell the greedy developers what they can do with their unacceptable plans.

TALK TIME

PAUL DONOVAN

Fireman Paul Donovan discusses one of the more dramatic incidents he attended – and the key issues affecting him in Canterbury

Tell us a little about yourself

I'm 29-years-old and have been a fireman in Canterbury for nine years now. I've been commended a couple of times, which is nice, and along the way there have been plenty of memorable incidents.

Perhaps the one that sticks out in my memory the most took place about three or four years ago. We had an incident where a woman set herself alight. She covered herself in petrol and flicked a lighter, and she just went up in flames. I was the first on the scene, and was able to put her out with a fire blanket. I dived on top of her, and by rolling around was able to put out the flames.

She was taken to East Grinstead, and recovered after about six months. She even came to the station and gave me a hug.

What's the big issue in Canterbury right now?

I'm 29 now, and I still don't own my own property. That's quite frustrating, as I've been serving the community for nine years, and as a single man, I can't afford to live in it. I know everybody is in the same boat, but it does get to me.

I read with interest the story on the front of Yourcanterbury last week and very much shared the views of those quoted in the article.

I often spend long shifts working in and around the city but then rather than a quick five minute stroll home, I have a 30-minute drive to get home. It is tiring.

I think Canterbury is a great city and I'm proud to serve it. Just that I'd like to be able to afford to live and work here.

YOUR LETTERS

Whitstable seafront is a real let-down

IS THERE any good reason why the area in the photo – on Whitstable seafront – cannot be paved over and one or two proper flower containers be sited?

I feel this area, overgrown with weeds, is a let-down to an otherwise pretty site.

Help save your local TV news coverage

AS your readers may be aware, ITV has announced plans to change its regional news coverage and scrap its three editions of Meridian Tonight, replacing them with one programme covering an area from Southend in Essex to Weymouth in Dorset.

We believe this will provide viewers with a much poorer service, ending the dedicated, award-winning, programme for Kent and Sussex.

We would ask any readers who share this view to express their opinion to their local MP and to the broadcasting regulator Ofcom.

The regulator can be contacted by email at: PSBReview@ofcom.org.uk.

As part of the complement of media outlets in Kent, like the papers in the KoS Media Group (publishers of Yourcanterbury), we believe the public in our area currently receives a first-class service but this is one which will be damaged if these plans go ahead.

Ofcom claims to place great weight on the opinions of the public it is meant to serve, and we believe that the views of your readers can help stop this proposal.

UPLOAD YOUR VIDEOS

OUR new online, on-demand, broadband TV service – www.yourkenttv.co.uk – is now fully launched, allowing YOU to upload your videos.

Soft launched earlier this month, the service is now fully operational with hundreds of clips already online and ready for you to view, for free, on your PC.

With dedicated channels for sport, business, property, motors and leisure, there is also a community channel for you to upload your clips and access a potentially limitless audience.

From local bands to fetes, birthday parties to strolls around your local town or village, the channel is designed for you.

What's more, once you've seen the clips you can add your comments too – and rate them.

From the site, you can also access the newly-launched Kent County Council-backed KentTV service, which launched on Friday.

It is produced by Ten Alps – the production company of Live Aid hero Bob Geldof.

Cricket season was still a wash out

I KNOW Graham Ford and Rob Kent at Kent Cricket Club all seem very pleased with themselves for their efforts this season, but once again it seemed to be much ado about nothing.

They won the Twenty20 Cup (which for most clubs was completely washed out so let's not get too carried away) but once again performed miserably in the County Championship.

I remain unconvinced the frequently moody Key is the right man to lead the lads.

Housing scheme is not playing fair

WHAT right do Canterbury council have to provide affordable housing only to a select group of so-called "key workers" out of money taxed from all ratepayers?

People in the private sector not only earn less on average, than the average fireman's £26,500, and many would love to earn the police starting salary of £25,454 (after 32 weeks). They would also love to get early retirement, indexed final salary pensions, plus the sick benefits fireman and policemen receive. As for the job being dangerous, neither come anywhere near the top ten of dangerous jobs in the country.

Health & Safety Executive for 1976-1995.

Teachers, after a few years are on the fireman's salary of £26,500, their pay structure then takes them up a lot higher for just attending school year after year. They also benefit from the usual civil servant perk; early retirement for stress. Amazing how many teachers suffer from stress and retire early on full pension.

Without factory workers, van drivers, shop workers to make or deliver goods, teachers would have no blackboards, the fireman no hoses, and the police wouldn't have all those forms to fill in, and heaven forbid, might have to actually go out on the street and catch villains.

The very people who really do need the help, and really on low salaries, are forced to pay for a two-tier society through their rates, and are now told to stand back to let overpaid, under-worked civil servants get affordable housing, while they are left on their own to struggle to get on the housing ladder.

It's time Canterbury council started to play fair with all rate payers, we are all key workers not just those on the government payroll.

The homeless are human not animals

I AM pleased the Scrine Foundation have raised the issues of the way the homeless on the streets of the city appear to be falling off the scale.

Some of the attitudes I hear and see from people about these poor unfortunates, defies belief. They are still people and as such we should treat them so – and not like animals.

Terry Dyer
Via email

It's not compassion, it's disgust

IN response to your article in last week's Yourcanterbury and on your website, www.yourcanterbury.co.uk, concerning so-called 'compassion fatigue' towards the homeless I would like to make the following comments.

I have lived in Canterbury most of my life and for the last 10 years in Sun Street which is right in the city centre.

While I agree there may be many homeless people who benefit from help, the ones I see EVERY day are the usual grubby suspects.

They are begging, drunk, unconscious or drugged up at the best tourist trail spots for the best cash income.

Even though begging is against the law and carries a maximum fine of £1,000 it doesn't stop them as the boys in blue just ignore them.

I assume they are also claiming benefits while begging which is no different to other unemployment benefit recipients working, but for some reason they get away with it. If you want to increase sympathy for the genuinely needy homeless then the Scrine Foundation should concentrate on helping the Class-A drug-using beggars away from the tourist spots.

We don't have compassion fatigue, the 'homeless' that we see are a total nuisance that prompt feelings of disgust not sympathy.

Jon Gardner
Via email

There's only so much money to give

JUST what is the Scrine Foundation on about? This city does not have 'compassion fatigue' when it comes to the homeless at all.

We have all given money to them over the years, yet far from any of them taking their cash hand-outs and doing something useful with them, they remain there day-in, day-out.

There is only so much we can do, so much money we can give.

Lee's having the last laugh

Ricky Gervais is a huge fan, but his mum prefers Tom O'Connor – so just how funny is Stewart Lee?

ANYONE who has ever enjoyed cutting-edge comedy will be familiar with Stewart Lee's work, even if they don't recognise his face.

His many writing credits include Radio 4's On The Hour, which later became the groundbreaking TV series The Day Today and launched the careers of, among others, Steve Coogan.

He acted as script editor for Harry Hill's first television programme, wrote episodes for Al Murray the Pub Landlord and this year co-scripted a critically acclaimed play with Johnny Vegas.

With a new stand-up tour called 41st Best Stand-Up Ever! – a homage to his ranking in a Channel 4 poll – audiences might be expecting a mediocre talent.

One of the poster quotes describes him as "the worst stand-up I have ever seen", but industry guru Ricky Gervais claims Lee is "the funniest, most cliché-free comedian on the circuit".

The unusual choice of tour name has proved a useful theme for the show, as Lee discusses our roles in life and how we are viewed by our families.

"My mother thinks I'm wasting my life in comedy," he revealed. "Her favourite comedian is Tom O'Connor and she keeps telling me one of his 'proper' jokes about a sardine. I got half an hour's worth of material out of that joke."

STEWART LEE – 41ST BEST STAND-UP EVER!
Friday, October 5
Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

In the mid-90s, Lee and comedy partner Richard Herring enjoyed a spell as student heroes with BBC2 series Fist of Fun and This Morning With Richard Not Judy. Now 39, Lee is slightly bemused by the apparent nostalgia for their surreal old shows.

"When we started out as a double act, the viewing figures weren't great and nobody came to our live shows," he said. "So it was strange to realise that people viewed us in that fond way. Now people who liked us back then bring their kids to my show. But the growth of the internet means people are discovering them again and talking about new comedies."

Lee's first brush with major mainstream success was to become one of the most painful episodes in his career, when he was asked to direct and contribute to the hugely controversial stage show Jerry Springer: The Opera in 2001.

When it ran at London's National Theatre for four months in 2003, Lee described that period as "the highlight of my life".

But after a four-year run in theatres and a good deal of critical acclaim, the opera attracted the attention of Christian Right groups and the British National Party. The massive protests and media debate that followed effectively derailed the production, leaving Lee disillusioned with mainstream theatre.

Also a novelist and a rock music critic for the Sunday Times, Lee is dedicated to providing alternative entertainment and escaping "the squares". If anything good came out of his Jerry Springer experience, he claimed, it was the chance to kill off the show while it was still worth watching.

He said: "Most things do become worse with popularity. When I was a kid, indie music and alternative comedy was just for the weirdos, but now you get football fans going to comedy gigs and listening to Oasis.

"Now I think what's left for all the misfits? I left my last management company because they were trying to get me a late-night ITV slot, as if that was the logical end point for my career. But I didn't want that.

"I would like more money, though, so that's why I'm writing the next series of My Family. That's a joke, by the way."

• Stewart Lee is appearing at the Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury, at 7.45pm on Friday, October 5. Tickets cost £14/£12. To book, you can phone 01227 769075, or visit www.gulbenkiantheatre.co.uk.

JACQUI McSHEE

Friday, September 28
Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

THE unique voice of Jacqui McShee will be conjuring some magic when she visits the Gulbenkian with legendary band Pentangle.

Ever since the band expanded the frontiers of folk music in the 1960s, it has continued to make ground-breaking music and earned a Lifetime Achievement Award at this year's BBC Radio 2 Folk Awards. In the summer, Sanctuary Records released a four-CD box set covering the band's 40-year career and the current line-up is due to feature in a new DVD to be released on the Park Records label.

The line-up has changed over the years, though Jacqui's unique voice has always remained constant. She is now joined by Gerry Conway on drums and percussion, Spencer Cozens on keyboards, bassist Alan Thompson and Gary Foot on saxophone and flute.

Pentangle's style has been labelled 'jazz folk', but the band's wide-ranging repertoire should appeal to most musical tastes.

Up-and-coming singer/songwriter Ella Edmondson – daughter of comedians Ade Edmondson and Jennifer Saunders – will be opening the concert.

The gig starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £14. To book, call 01227 769075 or visit the website at www.gulbenkiantheatre.com.

ON GENERAL RELEASE

A MIGHTY HEART (15)

GEORGE Bush's war on terror will ultimately be won or lost in the media. In their pursuit of these stories, journalists risk their lives to expose the shocking truth about the conflict. In 2002, the kidnapping and subsequent beheading of Wall Street Journal reporter Daniel Pearl in Pakistan shocked the world. This film is an harrowing account taken from his wife Mariane's memoirs. Released last Friday.

MICHAEL CLAYTON (15)

MICHAEL Clayton (George Clooney) is an in-house 'fixer' at one of the largest corporate law firms in New York. Clayton, a former prosecutor from a family of cops, takes care of the firm's dirtiest work. He cleans up clients' messes, handling anything from hit and runs to shoplifting wives and crooked politicians. Released, Friday, September 28.

EVENING (12A)

SOME of the finest actresses working today join forces for Lajos Koltai's saccharine drama, based on the popular novel by Susan Minot. In the opening scenes, Vanessa Redgrave shares the screen with her real-life daughter Natasha Richardson and the luminous Toni Collette and Eileen Atkins. Released last Friday.

Journey into the unknown

BY ROBIN WALKER

KURT RUSSELL has been working as an actor in Hollywood since he was a child in the 60s, but he's about as different as can be from the typical Tinseltown thespian.

For one, he is a card-carrying member of the National Rifle Association and an admitted Republican, something a lot of similar-minded stars have chosen to keep under wraps in the liberal world of showbiz.

"There were instances where people would call me up and say 'This director was afraid of working with you because of your politics'," said the 56-year-old, who dubs himself a libertarian.

"That started to change about 10 years ago," he continued. "Writers stopped trying to turn me into a wooden Republican along the lines they were doing to Charlton Heston. Now I can go to a party and not feel so outcast."

He is also unafraid to admit that acting is one of the easier professions and something that has got him into trouble with those who prefer to play the 'artiste'.

"To go on about acting as art is ridiculous," he said. "You don't have to be gifted just to hit a mark and say a line. As far as I'm concerned that's 90 per cent of the job. Anyone who finds acting difficult just shouldn't be doing it."

Indeed, the reluctant professional does make his latest role look easy, playing a psychotic driver called Stuntman Mike in Quentin Tarantino's new film, Death Proof.

A heartless but charismatic villain, Mike cajoles young women into his specially-adapted car for a journey that normally ends in tragedy.

"I just took one word and ran with it – coward," said Kurt of his approach to the character. "This is a guy who kills women. I think it's the core of all these psycho-killer characters, especially this one."

The film, a blend of slasher flick and car chase action, sees Mike getting more and more deranged.

"He's not one character all the way through. He's got issues with pain," said Russell.

"I said to Quentin 'Why don't we do something different here at the end? Why don't we really go with this word 'coward'? So we went all the way down that road," he said.

It's certainly a return to the scarier side of Kurt's portfolio, the veteran screen star having cornered the market in horror as a younger man in films including The Thing and Escape From New York.

And in a way, Death Proof is a homage to the films of Russell's past. It was originally conceived as a double feature from Tarantino and director Robert Rodriguez, called Grindhouse, and both are apparently fans.

"To be part of, in a weird way, the process of their love affair with movies was a special feeling," said Russell.

Most important to the actor was creating a really memorable screen baddie. "I've never actually seen one of these characters at the end of a movie completely fall apart. It's like when you hammer your finger – you have an idea what it will feel like, but when you actually do it it's way worse than you thought!" he said.

Renowned for his on-screen stunts, Kurt shows no signs of wanting to scale down the action, and does a lot of the incredible driving in the movie himself.

"The problem is you're in the wrong lane doing 100mph," said Russell.

"You have to trust that a coyote won't run into the road or another car slip by one of the roads they've told you are shut off. To put that out of your head and play the character while you're doing it, that's what you get paid to do."

• Death Proof, directed by Quentin Tarantino, was released last Friday.

Let the Oriana take the strain

BY JEREMY GATES

WHEN Atlantic breezes nudged up to Force Seven, and Oriana's captain gently applied his accelerator, the P&O cruise ship devised such a beguiling roll that the chairs in the library lounge became positively hypnotic.

Perhaps Nelson's men felt the same in their hammocks. Ongoing research among my fellow passengers found hardly any of us could hold a book or magazine for more than 10 minutes, before zizzing gently off to the Land of Nod.

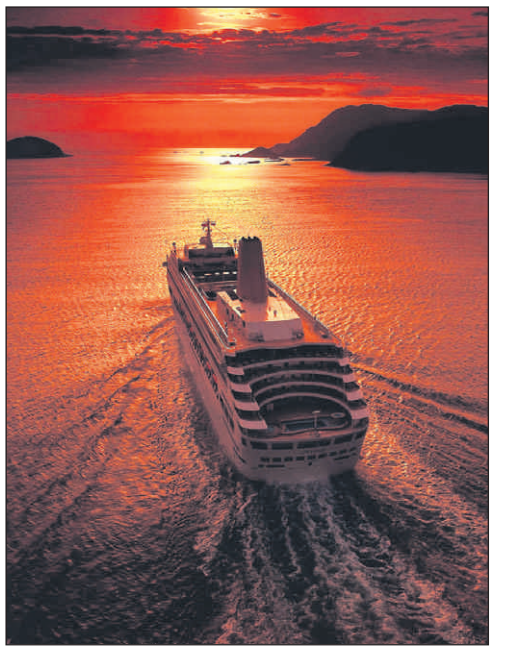
The 70,000-tonne Oriana took over from Canberra as the new mainstay of P&O's fleet back in 1995, when few realised a new boom in cruising lay just around the corner.

Since then the new generation of superliners has taken over, some twice Oriana's size and even bigger. Plenty have become giant floating hotels or shopping malls.

After a major upgrade last autumn Oriana, to her great credit, continues to set her own style: she's Middle England at sea, when so many other ships adopt the brasher approach of the US/Caribbean cruise market.

Although Oriana carried a full complement of 1,800 passengers on our trip, we ordered breakfast in our room – at no extra charge – to watch the sun coming up over the Atlantic breakers entirely alone.

There are still only a handful of shops on board, the cricket bats signed by Don Bradman and Colin Cowdrey are still proudly on show in the Lord's Tavern bar, and a pre-breakfast stroll on the promenade deck brings cheerful smiles of greeting from early retireds sporting the latest leisure gear.



JUST CRUISING: P&O's cruise ship the Oriana sets her own style; a case of Middle England at sea

In line with the latest fashion, of course, Oriana will serve up meals around the clock in various bars on the lido deck. But why forgo the pleasant evening ritual of dressing to a modestly respectable level for either first or second sitting of dinner in the formal restaurants?

We thought the quality of the food this time was even better than on our first visit.

Before each stop, there's a duty-free sale of 'take ashore' items – from spirits to cigarettes – to boost takings.

With so many things to do on board, ports of call passed in something of a blur – and few passengers seemed bothered about where they went anyway.

The city of Corunna is a nicer corner of northern Spain than it looks at first sight. Santa Cruz, on the northern shore of Tenerife, is being impressively revamped to give this beleagured island a new, upmarket image.

Lanzarote I can't recall with pleasure, because I ended up amid the boozy bars of Puerto del Carmen, but Madeira is the perfect pitstop on any voyage. That first glimpse of Funchal climbing endlessly up a steep hillside as you pull back the curtains can't fail to take the breath away.

When we climbed the elegant flower gardens of Funchal to look down on the Oriana, in harbour, bedecked in flags from stem to stern, I realised how misguided is the 'expert' who wrote that the QE2 is the last ship to actually look like a cruise ship.

Oriana is a stunner too. If you can get on board for £100 per person per day, with all meals and entertainment provided and occasional ice creams thrown in for free, the opportunity shouldn't be missed.

When this Belle rings Billie comes a calling

BY ANDY WELCH

WHEN the name Billie Piper comes up in conversation, one of two images tend to spring to mind for most people.

Either as a teen popstar or as Rose Tyler in the resurrected and hugely successful Doctor Who.

From this week she will add a third public face, and this one is very grown up.

She appears in Secret Diary Of A Call-Girl, in which she plays prostitute Belle de Jour – a true story adapted for the new ITV2 series.

'Belle' – her real identity has never been revealed – worked as a high-class escort in London for years, before detailing her exploits in a famous online blog and later in two books, The Intimate Adventures Of A London Call-Girl and The Further Adventures Of A London Call-Girl.

"It's intimate," said Billie of the eight-part series. "Really intimate. I'm really scared, if I'm honest. Well, just… I'm quite nervous, you know, because of the nature of the show.

"I hope people think it's been handled well and that at times it makes people laugh and that people can get over the initial shock factor of the piece."

It may indeed come as a shock to some viewers to see Billie – who celebrated her 25th birthday this month – writhing around in her underwear, and of course, in some scenes, doing what prostitutes do – having sex. But the young actress is more than aware of what she's letting herself in for.

Billie said: "I considered this job more than I considered anything before. It's such a different world to what I know. Obviously it's quite full on and it's relentless. It's not just one sex scene here and there, it's… endless!"

ALL CHANGE: From travelling the galaxy with Dr Who, Billie Piper plays a high-class prostitute in her latest role

Many people would happily admit that acting out such scenes in front of a room full of camera crew would make us blush, but Billie maintains she didn't get embarrassed.

"You talk endlessly about it and you choreograph it like a contemporary dance," she said.

As viewers will soon find out, Billie spends a lot of time in her skimpies, but she looks good, make no mistake. So is her super-toned body the result of hours and hours in the gym?

"No, not the gym. I don't like the gym at all, makes me want to kill myself. But I have been running outside quite a bit, and I'd just finished a play," she said.

Despite winning a Guardian newspaper award for Blog of the Year and publishing two books, there is still some doubt by sceptics as to whether Belle was a real person.

Billie, however, insists that she met the real Belle, who helped her to prepare for the role.

"She's sweet and she's interesting. She's very clever as well," Billie says.

As well as being impressed by the former call-girl – who has apparently now retired – Billie had a few questions of her own for Belle.

"I wanted to know when she was with a bloke, what their faces were like," she says.

Pardon?

"I wanted to know if they were bolshy and turned into egomaniacs or power-freaks," she added.

"Belle told me that it was quite the opposite. Men get really scared and vulnerable and nervous, worrying about if they are going to be exposed to the point where they can't perform. I didn't think it would be like that, so it was quite fascinating really."

MISSING FRIENDS: A non-profit-making, three-minute music video called Missing Friends/Amigos Perdidos, made by children, for children. Explanation: "We know it won't win an Oscar, but just the same we think it is beautiful because it's a film of our children capturing the innocence and joy of their childhood. What could be more precious? Sadly, thousands of children just like them disappear each and every year, and the names of Ben Needham, Yeremi Vargas and Madeleine McCann have been added to that growing list.

"None of us can afford to be indifferent. Evil flourishes when good people choose to do nothing. The reality is we are part of a community that is local, national and worldwide, especially where this cause is concerned.

"We can all be more proactive and a little less reactive. Together, we can make a difference, but only if we try. This is the least we owe Ben, Yeremi and Madeleine, and every other missing child and tormented family that has suffered through this never-ending tragedy. Let's all protect the innocent."

Exchange rate matters when buying overseas

PROPERTY investors looking to the overseas market could stand to lose more than £3,500, according to experts at the Property Investor Show.

At a time when the pound is strong against some of the world's leading currencies, second homebuyers and property investors should be looking to cash in on exchange rates when transfering money for the property purchase.

Instead, the investor's group claim many are losing money on this important transaction simply by using a high street bank rather than a foreign exchange specialist which offers a more competitive rate.

Mark O'Sullivan, head of trading at Currencies Direct: "Aside from a UK home, buying a property abroad is likely to be the most expensive purchase you will make and it is crucial to get the best deal on the exchange rate to ensure you don't lose out when transferring money overseas.

"Using a specialist rather than a bank could save thousands of pounds which can be spent on other initial costs. This figure doesn't even take into account the transfer fees that many banks charge, which would inflate the amount further."

Home owners' fears over interest rate hike

CONCERNS over mortgage rates have intensified this month, according to the latest survey.

Website propertyfinder.com's monthly survey uncovered reduced optimism when it comes to house prices across the market.

It is now expected that prices will rise at a rate of 3.9 per cent – roughly in line with wage growth. This represents a slower-than-expected hike in prices, which were forecast for a 5.1 per cent rise over the summer months.

Added to this is the fear that interest rates are set to get higher, meaning more cash outlay for mortgage payers.

Warren Bright, chief executive of propertyfinder.com, said: "Buyers and sellers still expect house prices to rise – just more slowly.

"The housing market has responded to higher base rates and will adjust further thanks to the credit squeeze in the wholesale markets.

"For new borrowers, especially those with poorer credit records, mortgages will be harder to come by.

"It seems likely the housing market will remain slow."

RISE AND FALL: Although August figures show an increase in sales and buyers, there are still concerns over the effect HIPs and interest rates will have on the housing market

Housing market is still clouded by uncertainty

AFTER a slowdown in July the house market is once again picking up pace as estate agents report a rise in sales and buyers looking to snap up a property.

■ BY ED HILL

The latest information from the National Association of Estate Agents (NAEA) revealed the upturn with the number of registered buyers, properties on estate agents' books and sales per agent all rising during August.

However, with uncertainty clouding the economic climate, the majority of these figures were still down on the same time last year.

According to the NAEA, the number of people looking to purchase a home increased slightly in August with agents reporting a rise of 3.8 per cent with an average of 326 buyers registered on their books in comparison to the 314 recorded in July.

While an increase in house hunters is typical for the time of year, this is the lowest reported August rise since 2003, as increasing interest rates and reduced house price inflation cause caution among consumers.

The number of houses for sale increased in August as NAEA members reported an average of 81 properties for sale during the month compared to the 45 properties reported the previous month. The number of sales reported increased in August, with an average of 12 houses sold per agent compared to the 10 properties sold per agent in July.

The number this time last year was 15.

The NAEA blame recent economic movements and introduction of the HIPs legislation for the decrease.

Meanwhile, first-time buyers took a smaller share of the market this summer as their percentage share was reported at 9.7 per cent, compared with 13.4 per cent in August 2006.

This continuing waning in the market can be partly attributed to the turbulent interest rate rises that have lead to the current insecurity for this sector.

What's more, it is taking longer to complete house moves – rising from 17 weeks in 2006 to 18.2 in 2007.

NAEA president, Stewart Lilly, said: "The latest figures indicate that a period of low house price inflation may well be on its way.

"However, the recent introduction of the second phase of HIPs is likely to cause more disruption and in particular prompt a 'wait and see' strategy from individuals who are unsure about the full impact of the legislation."

HOW NEW HIGH SPEED RAIL LINK PLANS ARE ALREADY CHANGING THE FACE OF THE HOUSE MARKET.

MOTORS NEWS

Renault customer to hit slopes after win

LUCKY prizewinner Sarah Thorne grabbed skis for her visit to Motorline Renault in Ashford.

Although there was a distinct lack of snow at the Hilton Road dealership, she was gearing up for a winter sports holiday courtesy of the motor group.

She won £350 of holiday vouchers in a summer draw held across Motorline's four Renault service centres: Maidstone, Canterbury, Ashford and Dover.

As a keen skier there was no doubt about how Sarah, from Tenterden, would use her windfall: "I'm delighted. I haven't won anything like this before. I'm planning to use the vouchers towards a skiing holiday next year."

Why green is being highlighted in white

WHITE is the new green, judging by the many white-painted eco-friendly concept cars now produced as CO2 emissions become as crucial as fuel consumption.

Volvo's C30 special (pictured) highlights the trend well, but Fiat's small car line-up makes it favourite to lead the environmental battle.

Group chief Luca di Meo said: "We aim to be the manufacturer with the lowest CO2 emissions in Europe – and want to do this the Fiat way, providing customers with everyday solutions to reduce the environmental impact of personal transportation."

Micra '2008' due for launch next month

NISSAN has revamped its distinctive Micra for 2008 models, launched in October.

Trim levels and colour specs have also been revised to harmonise with the bigger Note hatchback/MPV and hugely successful Qashqai.

Features such as an audible speed warning system and Bluetooth phone link are now standard on certain versions and all Micras will now have a jack socket so that MP3 players can be played through the car's sound system.

Prices are also largely unchanged, starting from £7,495.

IMPROVED LOOK: New Toyota Prius is easier on the eye compared to its 'wheelie-bin' predecessor, but we're still waiting for an environmentally friendly car that thrills

Green gamble looks a good bet for Toyota

ALREADY the world's most profitable carmaker, and likely to overtake General Motors soon as the most productive, it also makes the world's most famous environmentally-friendly car – the Toyota Prius.

This petrol-electric hybrid asks oil addicts to make few sacrifices for rehab; there are no muesli-pattern seats or recycled rubber fixtures and fittings.

It even has air-con and a fairly racy shape – a sharp contrast with the original car's designer wheelie bin looks.

The styling may be irrelevant to Prius fans though, because it is the 1.5-litre petrol engine and 1.2-litre electric low emission and consumption power partnership that they like.

Together, they push out 143bhp – enough for a reasonable 0-62mph of around 11 seconds.

Not that anyone puts that to the test, because you soon find yourself playing a game with the throttle and the 'powertrain' graphics on the dashboard, so the electric motor whirrs happily without waking the nasty, dirty petrol engine.

So, within an hour you have been through rehab and instead of risking road rage you are wafting around like a highway hippie delivering the milk.

The brakes are clever too, because they recover what would be lost energy on a normal car and channel it back into the car's battery – good for stop-start town traffic.

But all this technology costs. The cheapest Prius is nearly £18,000 – Toyota's equivalent conventional family hatchback, the Auris, starts at around £12,000 – and Toyota is rumoured to be subsidising every Prius sold.

Greens and gadget fans apart, buyers may also be put off by the relatively untried technology – despite an impressive eight-year/100,000-mile warranty on the hybrid system itself.

The car is also 'extremely' automatic – you simply select forward or reverse and go from A to B – which makes it a bit dull to drive even though the car handles and rides well.

On the other hand, it is a practical car to live with; the hybrid powertrain and batteries do not impinge on the car's ability to function as a roomy family hatchback.

USED CAR ROUND-UP:
OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

BEST-SELLING FAMILY HATCHBACKS

carsforkent.co.uk

LOOKING for a car that does it all? Start shopping for a family hatchback; it seats five, can be crammed like a small van and represents a good balance of space, flexibility and economy... providing you don't go for the 'hot hatch' version. Family hatches dominate the UK top 10 – all three of our recommendations are regulars – and the end product needs to be good to compete at all against talented opposition. Market clout helps, of course, but this trio deserves to be there on merit too – check out the profiles below.

FORD FOCUS

BRITAIN'S favourite car. Or is it? Some say it's number one through Ford's formidable market share. Fair point, but the Focus is also great to drive, practical, well-made and blessed with good engines. For second-hand buyers there is a fantastic choice of power – including the rapid ST – trim levels and body styles: a smart saloon and estate plus a coupé convertible. The car's popularity and ordinary looks are a weakness though and reason enough for some buyers to look elsewhere.

VAUXHALL ASTRA

SUFFERS like the Focus from being a common sight, thanks to its lofty new car top 10 sales position. But nobody could accuse the Astra of being dreary looking; Renault Megane aside, it is the most sharply styled family hatchback on sale. Vauxhall has also differentiated between the three-door model, dubbed the Sport Hatch, and the five-door workhorse. There is a longer wheelbase estate too. Engine options, including impressive Fiat-derived diesels, are among the best around.

VW GOLF

IT costs extra to get into a Golf, signalling the power of a more premium bonnet badge. Highly-regarded diesels also keep used prices up, while the GTI hot hatch lends glamour to the whole range. Interior quality and ambience is top notch too and the driving experience is possibly best in class. That said, the Golf suffers from fairly dull styling and some buyers might be tempted by sexier and cheaper used rivals such as the Citroën C4 and Megane.

Dover Harbour Board
Europe's busiest and most successful ferry port, we handle 15 million passengers, 3 million tourist vehicles and 2 million freight vehicles a year. With these figures set to increase, we are investing around £300m in a new ferry terminal and associated infrastructure including a marina, property development and traffic regulation. With the momentum already building there's never been a more exciting time to join our team. You'll be heavily involved in all aspects of construction, from feasibility, design and detailing through to Project Management for new works and the maintenance of existing installations. Our forward workload is hugely varied, so you'll be working not only on maritime-related projects, but also civil engineering and building schemes. To make an impact, you'll need to be a widely experienced Civil Engineer (Chartered or Incorporated) or a graduate with some experience, working towards corporate membership of the Institution of Civil Engineers. You'll be given full training and support to gain this and when achieved, this will open up a clearly defined career path. It's not impossible to change someone's attitude as long as you're prepared to work at it – and our staff always are. So whether you've done a similar job before or not, the most important thing is that you can empathise with young people to gradually bring out the best in them. It's a role that requires intelligence and common sense, plus the knowledge that sometimes you have to earn respect and can't just demand it. Bring us all that, and we'll train you for a career that will see you turn young lives around. Go to www.workwithyoungpeople.co.uk for more details and to apply.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

'Outdated family doc' a hazard to firms' health

EMPLOYEES and businesses are being unnecessarily burdened by the 'outdated family doctor service', the CBI claims.

CBI South East regional director, Malcolm Hyde, said: "Official figures show 10 million adults in England alone cannot book an appointment with a GP more than 48 hours in advance. It's time there was real and fundamental reform with the needs of the patient coming first.

"A healthy workforce is as important to employers as a workforce with the skills needed to compete. An employee who isn't there because they have to wait around in a GP's surgery is a lost order or an unanswered phone call."

Government must fight EU's agency directive

FLEXIBLE working for thousands of people across the county could be in jeopardy, despite being increasingly offered by businesses – according to the latest research from the Confederation of British Industry.

The CBI has warned the Government it must stand firm against renewed EU and union pressure to resurrect the draft Agency Workers Directive; which puts agency workers on an equal footing with permanent staff after just six weeks.

The survey, by the CBI, the UK's biggest employers' organisation and the recruitment specialists Pertemps, suggests up to 250,000 placements across the country would be jeopardised if the directive were to be adopted.

The site has been set up by Fiona Price who set up the first company in the UK to provide financial advice for women.

Far East delegation keen to cement the Chinese connection

THINKING PROCESS: With more and more new employment regulations being put on small businesses it is good practise to take early action to insure there is little disruption

Prepare now ahead of wage and holiday hike

EMPLOYERS need to get to grips now with upcoming changes to employment regulations, a business support agency has warned.

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

As of October 1, there will be an increase in the statutory holiday entitlement to 4.8 weeks (24 days if you work a five-day week) and a rise in the minimum wage.

The adult rate, for workers aged 22 and over, will increase to £5.52 an hour.

And Business Link says local firms should be sure to have the right processes in place to minimise disruption to their operation.

The quarterly South East Business Monitor – a quarterly survey of 1,800 of the region's small-and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) – found recent changes to regulations such as the smoking ban, paternity and maternity rights, and age discrimination are perceived by business owners to have had little impact on their companies.

Although almost one third (32 per cent) of Kent companies identify red tape as a constraint on their business, the majority have a good understanding of the latest regulations.

Of the SMEs involved in the survey, introducing a smoke-free workplace (84 per cent), age discrimination (82 per cent) and maternity and paternity rights (72 per cent) legislation said there was no impact on their business.

Business Link's Linda Bennett said: "It seems that people running businesses have a 'can do attitude' and simply get on with the day-to-day running of their companies.

"Businesses are generally more affected by the fear of red tape than the actual implications of new regulations.

"Understanding new legislation is a vital part of coping with the changes that you may need to make to your business. Getting to grips with regulations can seem daunting at first, but we are able to advise on how to stay within the law. Taking early action can mean there is very little impact on your business.

"It can be difficult to find the time, particularly for small businesses, to keep up with changing legislation and take the necessary action."

Business Link has drawn up a practical guide to explaining the legal responsibilities and how best to prepare.

Boss at a loss over keeper

BRICKIES manager Steve Lovell will be looking for another goalkeeper after a serious injury to first choice goalie Josh Willis.

Willis had to be stretchered off in the FA Cup replay defeat against Dartford with what turned out to be a chipped bone in the back of his knee and damaged ligaments.

Lovell said: "I do have two or three goalkeepers in reserve, but as Josh is seriously injured I will be looking to sign a new keeper."

Sittingbourne will be in action this weekend when they face Burgess Hill Town in a Ryman Division One South clash.

Bourne looking for first points

SITTINGBOURNE Rugby Club have a packed fixture list this weekend with a host of teams in action.

Sittingbourne's first team are back in action when they travel to Dartfordians in their second Kent Division One clash.

After last week's 23-10 defeat they will be hoping to put in a better performance and gain their first points of the season.

Sittingbourne's downfall in their opening day defeat was due mainly to a number of missed chances.

Dartfordians have started the season well picking up a win over Kent rivals Ashford in their opening game of the season.

Sittingbourne's third team will also be in action when they face Whitstable third's at home.

Finally, the under-14's will be playing their second league game of the season when they travel to play Ashford.

SO CLOSE: Faversham keeper Rob Lindley claims this cross but couldn't prevent the Hailsham scoring the third goal which ended Town's FA Vase hopes for this season

Lilywhites' Vase hopes shattered in extra time

FAVERSHAM continue to improve but Paul Copley's Lilywhites suffered more heartbreak for as they were knocked out of the FA Vase at the first hurdle after extra time.

The home side looked to be heading for a morale-boosting victory but a lack of concentration cost them as the Sussex visitors pinched the tie in extra time.

Worse for the home side was the loss of Jason Mills, who left the pitch on a stretcher with a knee injury.

Copley brought in Sean Hetterly for his first competitive start of the season. Captain Mark Smith dropped to the bench with Richie Radborne inheriting the skipper's armband. Smith's starting place going to last week's goal scorer Brad Maguire.

Faversham started the brighter with Jason Mills winning almost everything in the air and setting up early chances for Ricky Freeman and Dave Read.

minutes after connecting with a Julian Beal free kick – his header turned round the post by visiting keeper Jon Purdey.

Freeman took advantage of some indecisive defending on 23 minutes to collect the ball on the right side of the area, the speedy forward beat the defender before firing a low shot agonisingly close to the near post.

Faversham were rocked by the injury to Mills, who rose to challenge for the ball and landed awkwardly, dislocating his knee.

The injury altered the balance of play as Hailsham pushed forward for the last 15 minutes. They were rewarded with the opening goal on 41 minutes as Matt Smith rised unchallenged in the six-yard area to head home.

The Lilywhites upped their game in the second half and were back on level terms three minutes into the second period. Michael Cook received the ball from a Sean Hetterly cross and chipped the ball over Purdey in the Hailsham goal.

With the home side settled and confident they took the lead on 62 minutes, as Jim Lyons controlled the ball in the box before firing coolly past the stranded Purdey.

Town appeared to be cruising against an ordinary Hailsham side with Town keeper Rob Lindley rarely involved.

But not for the first time this season Town lost focus at the back. With six minutes to go the visitors won a corner and an unmarked substitute Peter Cooper headed home to send the match into extra-time.

The winning goal came in the 96th minute as Smith picked up his second goal of the match.

The remainder of the game saw Faversham chase the game without creating a clear chance, and they were unable to force a penalty shootout.

The Lilywhites travel to Greenwich Borough for their next league match next Saturday.

Rookie's success proves to be Hart-warming story

RISING speedway star Jerran Hart has had an amazing debut season for Sittingbourne Crusaders, rounding off with eighth position at the British under-18's championship.

Of the achievement Hart said: "It was a great experience. I got to see who I am up against and just how good they are.

"When I won a heat against highly-rated Nicki Glanz I knew I have what it takes to win in the future."

The 16-year-old has turned a few heads in a short space of time riding for the Crusaders this year and could be heading for a Premier League team next season.

SPEEDWAY

His love for speedway began at the age of 10 when he acquired his first bike, with his initial break into the sport coming last November when he won a novice championship.

After winning that championship, Hart was drafted into the Crusaders squad and has impressed onlookers in this year's Conference league, steadily improving from meeting to meeting.

Hart started the season by setting targets which he achieved quickly.

In his first meeting he scored eight points and after that achieved a double figure score of 14.

His best performance of the season came against Plymouth Devils where he achieved his first ever maximum 16-point haul.

However, his worst performance was at a academy match where he hit a fence against Plymouth.

As for next season Hart said: "It is early days, but Isle of Wight and Somerset of the Premier League are after me so I could be riding there next year."

He added: "I couldn't have done it without my family and sponsors who have supported me."

Hart's ultimate aim is clear, which is to follow his idols in becoming world champion.

Chipstead 0 – Sittingbourne 1

INJURY-HIT Sittingbourne bounced back from their FA Cup mauling by Dartford to post their first league win for a month and climb to fifth in Ryman South.

Both sides came into the game at a low ebb, with Chipstead still looking for their first point of the season.

Sittingbourne were without Anthony Hogg, Lee Hockey, Steve Hafner and still nursing bruised egos from the 5-1 defeat at the hands of Kent rivals Dartford.

The absences, coming soon after the loss of Lee Browning to Dover Athletic, is a blow to the Brickies' play-off hopes.

Willis was replaced by Steve Williams in goal and he was the busier of the two keepers early on.

The first goal was likely to be crucial as both sides struggled throughout to create chances on Chipstead's uneven pitch.

Against the run of play it was the visitors who took the lead after 22 minutes, Ian Varley heading home a Joe Dowley cross for his first goal of the season.

After the break, Chipstead's Craig Pitterson was the best player on the pitch as he caused problems for Sittingbourne's defence.

The Brickies brought a sizeable travelling support and they were relieved to see the assistant's flag for offside on 71 minutes when Fred Fleming headed into Sittingbourne's net.

Sittingbourne had one more scare when Andrew Wearing had a great chance to equalise with a free header but he put it straight at Williams.

The Brickies had another tough away game last night against eight-placed Whyteleafe. See www.yourswale.co.uk for details.

BACK TO WINNING WAYS: Despite injuries, the Brickies picked up three crucial league points at Chipstead

ON THE UP: Return of key players still couldn't stop Gore Court Ladies slumping to defeat

Lack of fitness shows as Court taste defeat

HOCKEY

GORE Court Ladies first XI, suffered a 4-2 defeat when they travelled to Bromley and Beckenham for the first match of the east league Division 2 South.

The team welcomed back influential players Donna Hearn and Sarah Gouldstone, but they couldn't inspire a Court victory.

Court started slowly and allowed BBHC to take a two-goal lead into half-time.

BBHC started the second half brightly by adding a third goal which sparked Court into action.

Court started to play some good attacking hockey with Jenny Francis pulling a goal back.

Rachael Lukehurst and Ruth Mason created more opportunities, but lack of fitness showed and they were unable to convert them.

Court continued to show a good fighting spirit and they attacked again and scored from a broken down short corner.

Gore Court Mens first team finished their pre-season programme with a visit to play the Canterbury Pilgrims.

The visitors began with a flourish as Paul Surridge nutmegged Philip Jones to open the scoring with a good finish.

Noel Lander made it two with a spectacular goal and Richard Dixon added the third, all within the first 10 minutes.

The Pilgrims recovered from their dreadful start and pulled it back to 4-2 at the break.

The second half became more fragmented with Court unable to reproduce the quality of passing they had displayed in the first half, but added two more goals to run out 6-2 winners.

Court begin their league season with a tough away trip to newly promoted BBHC on Saturday. Their first home game is a week later against Winchester, kick-off at 1.30pm.

Inauspicious beginnings leave pair playing catch-up

SHEERNESS East are away this Saturday against Fleet Leisure in their latest game in the British Energy Kent County League Premier Division.

After a sluggish start to the season, which included two 5-1 defeats, Sheerness have begun to climb the league.

Their hosts have had a similarly mixed opening few games, with one win and one defeat at home so far.

The next home game for Sheerness is on October 6 against Snodland.

Tough start continues as Ladies visit Canterbury

OLD Bordenians Ladies first team continue their tough start to the league season with a trip to play Canterbury thirds on Saturday. The Sittingbourne side were promoted last season and now play in Kent Ladies Division One.

Next week they are away at Holcombe.

The men's firsts are also adapting to a new division after promotion. They travel to Bexley this weekend to play Burnt Ash, who finished second bottom in Kent & Sussex Regional 1 last season.

Will week's lay-off give Faversham added boost?

FAVERSHAM Rugby Club will be looking to record their first win of their East Kent 1 campaign this weekend when they travel to Canterbury.

Faversham lost their opening game of the season against Dover 2nd's in an action-packed match losing by 35-10.
